

Gayla Marie Stiles Gayla has been devoted to working therapeutically with diverse populations throughout her life. As a professional modern dancer she performed internationally and established outreach programs which used the transformative, healing, and educational aspects of movement in schools, community centers, assisted living, and hospital settings. She is a licensed New York State acupuncturist working at New York Presbyterian Columbia University Medical Center. Gayla holds a Master's degree in Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine from Tristate School of Acupuncture.